Stimson, Knox
To Testify for Defense Funds

Hearings On Request for $4,848,171,957 Will Open Today.

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 20.—President Roosevelt's two Republican cabinet members will make their first official appearances before Congress this week to ask approval of his proposed new $4,848,171,957 defense appropriation.

Representative Woodrum, Democrat, Virginia, chairman of a house sub-committee which will start hearings tomorrow, said Secretary Knox and top-ranking naval officials would be the initial witnesses. Later, Secretary Stimson and War Department spokesmen will explain the Army's needs.

The legislators are expected to get a request from Mr. Roosevelt for authority to order active duty for four divisions and some other units of the National Guard, about 50,000 men in all.

Training Measures.

The chief executive recommended $2,161,441,957 in cash and $2,686,730,000 in contract authorizations in asking new funds.

The Navy Department would receive $836,176,540 to repair and expand numerous shore stations, increase armament and ordnance and expand its airplanes. The army air corps would receive more than one-third of the $3,911,995,417 asked for the War Department.

Within a week or 10 days, the Senate may take up legislation for compulsory military training.

Meanwhile, John L. Lewis, CIO chief, began a new drive for federal "blacklisting" of firms failing to comply with rulings of the National Labor Relations Board.

Proposed Order.

In a letter to the CIO executive board, Lewis reported that he had turned over to Sidney Hillman, of the Defense Commission, a proposed executive order which would:

Require that contractors with the government agree to "comply with all orders directed to them by the National Labor Relations Board."

Permit the National Defense Commission to terminate a contract in event of failure to comply with a Labor Board order.

Lewis also made public correspondence which disclosed that the President rejected on March 20, 1939, a request from Lewis that he, by executive order, require compliance with the labor act as a prerequisite to bidding on government contracts. Mr. Roosevelt wrote that he thought the "only unquestionably valid" method of instituting this requirement was by legislation.

U. S. Failed To Spend Enough, Public Affairs Council Asserts

Program for Restoring Employment Was Begun Too Late, Research Group Declares; 'Deficit Expenditures' Blamed; Post-War Depression Seen.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—The American Council on Public Affairs, holding that long-range spending program was essential to a "sound national economy," contended today that the Roosevelt spending program had not been successful because it was begun too late and had not spent enough. The conclusions were advanced in a survey by Arthur E. Burns and Donald S. Watson, of George Washington University. The council is a private research organization.

"The spending policy of the 1930's," the survey said, "must, indeed, stand indicted, not for what it has done but, rather, for its failure to develop the potential strength of the new fiscal technique. If public spending 'failed' in its goal of restoring relatively full employment, the responsibility must be placed in large measure on the method of handling this policy. . . .

"In a very real sense government blundered into the policy of public spending for recovery. When other methods failed deficit spending was accepted, but only as a third or fourth choice. Deficit spending was inevitable in any case. . . . Government groped about with this policy, never sure that it would work, never convinced that the policy was desirable. As a consequence, the policy of deficit spending has not been pushed vigorously enough to assure clear-cut success."

The writers contend that whatever prosperity may result from the preparedness program, depression is inevitable. "The bigger the war prosperity," they said, "the bigger the post-war depression."

Recent tax increases to help finance the defense program were termed "premature," because, the authors said, they levied taxes in advance of economic recovery. This, they added, would tend to retard recovery.

Selective Draft Almost a Certainty After Roosevelt Speech.

By EDWARD E. BOMAR,
Associated Press Writer.

President Roosevelt's acceptance speech appears to have made it almost a certainty that the United States soon will fall into step with the rest of the world by requiring military service of selected citizens.

Plans contemplate that by October 1 nearly 1,000,000 men will be under arms in the land forces, including the entire National Guard, a far greater number than at any other time except when the nation was actually at war.

For the second Sunday, workers tore up 240 feet of main line track to open a long unused drawbridge over Annsville creek—a narrow inlet from the Hudson—so the "Dottie" could get to and from her mooring basin.

This time, however, the cost to the railroad dropped from an estimated $600 to a mere $125 because Douglas had given advance notice.

Douglas' complaint to the War Department—which controls inland navigable waters—brought a ruling that the bridge must be opened at his request.

The cruiser's owner, a New York building superintendent, announced he planned another cruise next Tuesday and suggested the "Dottie" could be purchased at $800—but the railroad made no reply.

Chautemps Is Expected To Visit South America

VICHY, July 21.—(AP)—A Havas, French news agency, quoted well-informed sources today as indicating that Camille Chautemps would leave soon on a mission to South America—probably to Rio de Janeiro.

The general staff's delayed endorsement of selective service was without qualification, however. Now, on the tentative assumption that the legislation, with amendments, will be approved by August 1, the army is busily perfecting detailed plans to start within two months the training of an initial 400,000 men between 21 and 31 to be chosen by lot from the group which can best be spared from civilian life.

Rifles and other basic arms are available in ample numbers, but there is an admitted shortage in such equipment as blankets and overcoats which cannot be met for many months.

A quarter century ago, there were only about a tenth of the 200,000 officers needed for the army of 4,000,000 that was created; now more than 100,000 reservists, aside from some 25,000 regular army and National Guard officers, are available.

Australian Captain Cited For Sinking Italian Ship

London, July 21.—(AP)—King George has appointed Captain John Collins, of the Australian cruiser Sydney, a companion of the Order of the Bath for the sinking of the Italian cruiser Bartolomeo Colleoni in the middle Mediterranean. The admiral announced tonight.

A bar to distinguished service order was awarded to commander Hugh Nicholson, senior officer of the destroyer force which participated in the battle.

Lawrenceville
Woman Dies
As Home Burns

Miss Mamie Brand Trapped in Bedroom by Flames.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., July 21.—A 35-year-old crippled woman, member of Lawrenceville's famous banking family, the Brands, was trapped in her bed and burned to death tonight as flames destroyed the two-story family mansion on the Atlanta highway.

The writers contend that whatever prosperity may result from the preparedness program, depression is inevitable. "The bigger the war prosperity," they said, "the bigger the post-war depression."

Recent tax increases to help finance the defense program were termed "premature," because, the authors said, they levied taxes in advance of economic recovery. This, they added, would tend to retard recovery.

Mrs. Brand, who was with her daughter in the house when the fire broke out, was rescued. She was found sitting on the stairs of the smoke-filled house when rescuers, summoned from Lawrenceville by telephone, arrived. She was hysterical when found after the front door had been broken down.

Answers Call for Help.

Elias Nour, of Stone Mountain; Gordon Wright, and Willie Seagraves, of Lawrenceville, answered the help call after Mrs. Brand had telephoned Wright that "my electric ice box is on fire." Immediately after their arrival the entire dwelling was a mass of flames, Nour said. Repeatedly, the three men attempted to run the flames and reach the upstairs bedroom. This failing, they attempted to reach the room from the outside.

As the house was caving in, they discovered all their attempts had been made to reach the wrong room.

Roof Caves In.

When Miss Brand's Negro maid arrived on the scene as the roof was caving in, she told rescuers Miss Brand's bedroom was on the opposite side of the house.

The maid, Reasor Minter, said Miss Brand slept in a back upstairs bedroom directly above the kitchen in which the fire started.

Some neighbors reported having seen Miss Brand at the window and urged her to jump. She did appear, they said, just before the roof caved in. Her dog died with her. He had been her constant companion for years.

Firemen from Lawrenceville fought the flames unsuccessfully late into the night. Neighbors and townsmen joined in the firefighting.

Mrs. Brand and her daughter lived in the house alone with two dogs as companions.

Surviving Miss Brand are her mother and a sister, Mrs. Bartow Morgan Jr., of Atlanta.

Duke and Wally Attend
Portuguese Bull Fight

LISBON, July 21.—(AP)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor attended an 18th-century-style bullfight today at which the King of Congo, a Portuguese subject, also was a spectator. In Portuguese bullfights the bull is not killed as in the Spanish sport.

Laredo Bru mentioned no European nation by name, but his sympathy for invaded former neutrals was evident when he urged the delegates to "put solemnly into words the anxious but firm of free America."

The implications of his words were fully clear to them, because they have been studying a tentative agenda setting forth the desirability of adopting a firm inter-American front on such questions as possessions in the western hemisphere of nations conquered by Germany, Fifth Column activities, resettlement of refugees from war-torn Europe and, perhaps most pressing of all, how to readjust the continent to the economic dislocations resulting from Europe's war.

The grave nature of their deliberations was driven home forcefully to the delegates who passed through lines of sharp-eyed sentries with fixed bayonets.

Laredo Bru warned that "the western hemisphere is entering a new life of alarm and menace."

COOL IN A POOL—With "Old Sol" bearing down with a vengeance to shove the mercury over 92 for the first time in weeks, thousands of Atlantans sought the cooling waters of swimming pools yesterday for a bit of relief. This scene, made at Piedmont park, was re-enacted at every pool in this section and attendance at most of the pools reported record-breaking crowds.

Blistering Heat Holds
Most of Nation; 15
Die, 43 Drown.

CHICAGO, July 21.—(AP)—The summer's most blistering heat wave tightened its grip on the nation today from the great plains states to the Atlantic seaboard.

Fifteen deaths were attributed to the current heat wave and there were at least 43 drownings.

Temperatures in or near the nineties were the rule, and weather forecasters promised no relief through tomorrow.

Showers brought some comfort to scattered areas, but about the only cool spots from the Rocky mountains eastward were in the upper Great Lakes region—where Escanaba, Mich., reported 68 degrees—and some parts of New England.

The temperatures fell from 100 or above yesterday back into the low nineties or high eighties in Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma as a result of showers and cloudy skies.

The hottest spot on the weather bureau map was Kingman, Ariz., with 108.

Heat deaths reported included:

South Dakota, 2; New York, 2; Wisconsin, 3; Pennsylvania, 2; Minnesota, 1; Nebraska, 1; New Jersey, 1; Kansas, 1; Ohio, 2.

Three Americans Seized
By Japanese Fort Police

HONGKONG, July 21.—(AP)—American authorities said today the United States embassy at Tokyo is negotiating with the Japanese government for release of three Americans—Joseph C. Sever, his wife Cynthia, and her brother, Morgan Pateson Jr., all of San Francisco, who have been detained by police at Formosa.

The three left Hongkong June 21 in a locally built yacht, the Cynjo, bound for California. A storm drove them into the fortified zone at Formosa, where they were detained and their yacht was confiscated.

The implications of his words were fully clear to them, because they have been studying a tentative agenda setting forth the desirability of adopting a firm inter-American front on such questions as possessions in the western hemisphere of nations conquered by Germany, Fifth Column activities, resettlement of refugees from war-torn Europe and, perhaps most pressing of all, how to readjust the continent to the economic dislocations resulting from Europe's war.

The Duke and Wally attended an 18th-century-style bullfight today at which the King of Congo, a Portuguese subject, also was a spectator. In Portuguese bullfights the bull is not killed as in the Spanish sport.

Fire which started immediately after the crash for a time threatened large gasoline storage tanks of a gasoline company, but a change in wind direction plus action of the Cartersville fire department saved the tanks.

The bomber was flying over the North Sea last week on the way to the German Ruhr when it met 12 enemy planes, three of which turned aside and attacked.

One was shot down, but the others ignited the bomber's gas tank and disabled its retractable landing gear as it made for home.

Laredo Bru mentioned that "the western hemisphere is entering a new life of alarm and menace."

Mercury Reaches 97;
More Than 3,000 Swim
in City Parks.

The summer sun, a blistering heat wave, and a vengeance yesterday—the mercury at the airport hitting 97—to send countless thousands scurrying to the great-and-hot outdoors.

It was a great day for picnics and swimming parties and Atlantans flocked in large numbers to city parks for recreation and fun.

The five city-owned swimming pools did a landoffice business, attendants reported. Private pools also had their share of pleasure seekers.

A checkup at the five city pools showed between 3,000 and 4,000 persons took advantage of their cooling waters.

Likewise, picnic areas were jammed as pleasure-bent Atlantans took advantage of the first real hot Sunday in weeks.

Golf courses all over the city were crowded and highways leading to other pleasure spots in this section were congested all day long.

It was Atlanta's first real summer Sunday since June 1 and thousands made the most of it.

Meanwhile, the weather man predicted fair skies and warm weather for today.

While the airport high reading yesterday was 97, the official temperature downtown was 92, George W. Mindling, the forecaster, reported.

Argentina To Prosecute
Nazi Paper for Attack

BUENOS AIRES, July 21.—(AP)—The minister of the interior was ordered by the government today to prosecute the Nazi paper El Pampero because it published an anti-British article, described by a government spokesman as obscene and a violation of public morals.

The postmaster general of Argentina barred the edition from the mails, and the journalists' organization, Circulo de la Prensa, issued a public condemnation of the paper.

Meanwhile,

FAMILY HAS PICNIC—Picnic areas got their share of "business" yesterday as pleasure-bent Atlantans took to the outdoors to enjoy the first real summer Sunday in weeks. Here is a typical scene made in one of Atlanta's city parks. They are, left to right, Miss Gladys Scoggins,

Deaf and Blind Students Learn Square Dances' Intricate Steps

School Head Teaches Rhythm by Means of Gestures.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., July 21.—(P)—The old-fashioned square-dancing craze has penetrated even to the Colorado State School for Deaf and Blind, where children "feel" music.

"We started this thing just for the fun of it," says Dr. A. L. Brown, superintendent, who is known nationally for his work among handicapped children.

Now it has burst into a full blooming recreation project. There's no doubt the students enjoy it. Everybody laughs; everybody applauds and there is plenty of good-natured joshing—in the sign language.

Dr. Brown took a square-dancing course a year ago.

"I saw everybody else was having so much fun with the old folk dances that I wanted my young students to get the pleasure of it," he says.

"I learned the songs and how to call the dances, and then I started teaching my children. They took to it gracefully."

Dr. Brown stands on a chair so everybody can "see" his "calling." He uses both the sign language and his voice. The children watch him closely and read both his lips and his hands.

The two squares of his best dancers seldom make an error and they are quick to learn.

When Bill Monk, violinist, and Leon Dudley, pianist, from the school's department for the blind, start to warm up the instruments for a dancing session, there may be a group of students standing around waiting. Soon they are skipping through a few practice steps in time with the music.

"Some vibrations come to them through the floor," says Dr. Brown.

The dancers never get out of rhythm with the music once they have learned the routine. Western dancing is their specialty, and to make it realistic they have manufactured western costumes for themselves. They are in demand for exhibitions.

Colonel David Oltarsh, Noted Engineer, Passes

NEW YORK, July 21.—(P)—Lieutenant Colonel David M. Oltarsh, 57, construction engineer, architect and World War captain with the Twenty-eighth Engineers in France, died today of heart disease.

He assisted in the construction of many buildings in New York, the Ochs memorial at Chattanooga, Tenn., and the Santiago theater in Santiago, Cuba.

Captain Urged Halliburton Not To Sail Junk

Warned Writer Craft in Which He Disappeared Was Unseaworthy.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 21.—(P)—Captain Charles Jokstad, master of the liner President Pierce, said today he had examined and condemned as unsatisfactory the Chinese junk in which Richard Halliburton, writer and adventurer, disappeared with several companions attempting to cross the Pacific more than a year ago.

Captain Jokstad reported by radio July 5 his liner had passed what he believed was the barreled-encrusted rudder of the ancient craft, which vanished in an area swept by typhoons in the spring of 1939.

Captain Jokstad, whose vessel arrived here last week, told interviewers today he had boarded Halliburton's craft in Hongkong and particularly warned the writer against the wooden rudder, loss of which would have made the junk unmanageable.

He said that Halliburton, despite advice to the contrary, added 300 tons of ballast on the junk and set out for Treasure Island, at San Francisco, on a northerly course.

"Again I advised him to take a southerly course to Midway Island," said Captain Jokstad, "as the weather along the northern route was extreme at that time of year."

The President Pierce passed within a few feet of the floating debris while proceeding at half speed because of engine trouble. The master said because of choppy seas and the mechanical trouble, he did not stop to investigate.

Safety Reached In Canada By 23 Norsemen

Family Fled From Low-Diving German Bombers.

A CANADIAN EAST COAST PORT, July 21.—(P)—Twenty-three Norwegians reached a haven in Canada today in a nine-ton herring smack in which they fled from northern Norway in the face of low-diving Nazi bombers that sprayed their vessel with bullets.

The captain spoke for the group that included his wife and children, his 74-year-old father, five brothers and their wives and children. Through an interpreter picked up at St. John's, Newfoundland, he recounted calmly the trials through which they had come since they fled from Tromso, June 9.

The captain said Nazi airplanes attacked the vessel after he gathered up the other 22 members of his family crew and nosed out of Tromso.

He declared he carried food and munitions for the British and Norwegian forces during the conflict in Norway and also transported gold and silver for his nation's banking institutions and therefore the Germans had marked

Prison Term Starts Today For Annenberg

Publisher To Surrender to Federal Officers in Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 21.—(UP)—Moses L. Annenberg, 64, one-time immigrant boy and now one of the nation's richest men, surrenders tomorrow to begin a three-year prison term for income tax evasion.

He was scheduled to arrive tonight or early tomorrow from Philadelphia where he had spent the weekend with his family. He pleaded guilty last April to evasion of $1,217,296 taxes on his income for 1936 from a vast network of publishing enterprises, including the Philadelphia Inquirer and horseracing news services.

United States Marshal William H. McDonnell said Annenberg would surrender sometime before tomorrow at midnight and then would be taken to the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa. It had been reported that Annenberg might surrender at the prison, but McDonnell said the surrenderer would have to be made here because Annenberg's commitment papers and bond of $100,000, under which he has been set free, were issued here.

Annenberg will have to serve at least one year before becoming eligible for parole. With good behavior he could win seven days off his sentence each month and be released after serving 252 days of the full term.

He lost his last chance to escape imprisonment last Monday when Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson denied him plea for probation and stay of execution of sentence. He had asked probation on the ground that he was ill and needed his freedom to earn approximately $9,500,000 he has agreed to pay the treasury in settlement of all income tax claims against him.

The President Pierce passed within a few feet of the floating debris while proceeding at half speed because of engine trouble. The master said because of choppy seas and the mechanical trouble, he did not stop to investigate.

Live Wire Kills Florida Fireman

HOLLYWOOD, Fla., July 21.—(P)—A fireman was electrocuted today while fighting a blaze that destroyed most of the third floor of the 100-room Great Southern hotel.

Police said a high tension wire broke, coming in contact with Fireman Gilbert Higgins as he held a ladder in an alley behind the hotel.

All of the guests escaped unhurt but it was not known immediately how many were staying there when the fire was discovered about 7 o'clock this morning.

The hotel is located at the federal highway circle in the center of this winter resort.

Fall of France Told by Bullitt To Roosevelt

Envoy Witnessed Death of Republic; Worried Over Refugees.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(UP) President Roosevelt tonight received a first-hand account of the fall of France from William C. Bullitt, American ambassador to Paris.

Bullitt, who returned to this country by transatlantic clipper yesterday to "get in touch with the President," was a dinner guest at the White House a few hours after Mr. Roosevelt returned from a 48-hour cruise on the Potomac river.

Bullitt had been unable to communicate confidentially with the chief executive and the State Department since June 12.

The exact nature of the dinner discussion was not disclosed, but it was presumed it concerned the question of United States recognition of the Petain government and the refugee problem, in addition to consequences of the French capitulation to Germany.

Bullitt said after his arrival from Lisbon, Portugal, that his greatest concern was for 10,500,000 French and Belgian refugees whose problem he termed the "greatest ever."

Bullitt did not indicate when and if he would return to France. There have been unconfirmed reports that he would not go back.

Mr. Roosevelt, who went on the cruise for a rest after making his fateful decision on the third-term issue, returned to the White House only long enough for the dinner conference.

He left tonight for Hyde Park, N. Y., and will return here in time to have as his luncheon guest Thursday Prince Consort Felix of Bourbon-Parme, husband of Duchess Charlotte, of Luxembourg. The royal family is scheduled to arrive at Annapolis, Md., Wednesday aboard the United States cruiser Trenton. Duchess Charlotte remained at Lisbon.

Later in the week, Mr. Roosevelt will confer with his 1940 running mate—Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace—to map the third-term campaign drive and discuss a successor to Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley.

France Copies Hitler's Law On Intact Estates

Homestead Owners Banned From Dividing Lands Among Heirs.

VICHY, France, July 21.—(AP)—The French government borrowed a leaf from Adolf Hitler's Nazi law book today by raising the limits of an ancient Napoleonic law designed to keep intact ancestral estates.

By decree, the Petain regime boosted from 200,000 francs to 400,000 francs (about $2,000 to $4,000) the limit of "indivisible" property—which means that homesteads with a value up to the latter figure cannot be split up in wills and property endowments.

The owner of country property, for instance, must upon death leave that property in this amount intact, even if several children share in his will.

This rule, similar to one Hitler put into effect in Germany soon after his rise to power, is expected to encourage Frenchmen to remain on their family property.

Under the Hitler law of October 2, 1933, creating an "Aryan peasant class," small landowners are virtually forbidden from selling or dividing their ancestral holdings among heirs. The inheritance falls to the eldest son or daughter.

Another decree, promulgated in the government's campaign to rid itself of what it calls "deficiencies" of the past regime, placed news and radio under direct control of Vice Premier Pierre Laval.

The press, meanwhile, continued in daily editorials to remind the people that the order of things has changed.

Le Moniteur, of Clermont-Ferrand, now considered one of the most important newspapers in France, warned against the old French tendency of criticism.

"The Frenchman is a born critic," the newspaper said. "He volunteers signs of his independence. Abuse of this quality has not always given good results."

"Our only duty is to form solidly behind the Petain government and obey its regulations."

The Paris-Soir urged a "bold and total solution of the Jewish problem" in France.

Ballot Rights Of Reds Urged To Roosevelt

Listing of Communist Candidates Being De- nied, Group Charges

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—Contending that the right to petition and vote was being denied citizens by "self-styled vigilantes and 'patriotic' groups," a group of 65 prominent persons have asked President Roosevelt and Attorney General Jackson to enforce laws guaranteeing these rights.

"We refer in particular," they said in an open letter, "to the attempt to prevent, by illegal and violent methods, the efforts of the largest minority party in the country, the Communist party, to conform to the statutory requirements in the different states, for placing its candidates on the ballot.

"It is as citizens who are not members of the party and who do not subscribe to its principles, program or policy that we state our belief . . . in the constitutionally guaranteed right of minority parties, however, unpopular, to be heard by the voters and to be judged by them in the manner prescribed by law."

Signers of the letter included Dr. Mary E. Woolley, president emeritus of Mt. Holyoke College; Dr. E. A. Ross, chairman of the American Civil Liberties Union; Paul Robeson, Williams College professor and former editor of The Nation; Malcolm Cowley, editor of the New Republic; Rabbi Michael Alper, of New York, and Rockwell Kent, artist and author.

Three Recovering From Duel Wounds

BURLINGTON, Vt., July 21.—(AP)—While three men were recovering from gunshot wounds suffered yesterday in the capture of two soldiers who had escaped from Fort Ethan Allen's detention center, fort officials said tonight the captured men would be court-martialed soon.

The fort authorities said Private Bernard C. Bevins would be charged with assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to kill and Private George E. Sweetser with escaping confinement.

Colonel Edmund L. Gruber asserted that Bevins shot Major J. K. Mitchell, of the Third Cavalry, in the mouth when the latter apprehended the two escaped men in Morrisville, about 40 miles from there.

Bevins broke away, the colonel added, and in a gun duel that followed was wounded in one leg. Horace G. Melandy, a motor vehicle inspector, suffered a bullet bruise in one knee.

LATVIAN MINISTER REFUSES TO YIELD

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(UP) Dr. Alfred Bilmans, Latvian minister to the United States and dean of Baltic diplomats here, charged tonight that his homeland was the victim of "unprovoked aggression" by Soviet Russia, and said he would refuse to surrender his legation.

He said he had been officially informed of the dissolution of his country, along with Lithuania and Estonia, by the action of the Communist-controlled parliaments of the three republics.

He will refuse, he said, to recognize the legality of this action, and will ask continued recognition by the United States of his status as Latvian minister, a status extended to the ministers of Czechoslovakia, Poland, Norway and Denmark.

The State Department meantime had no immediate comment on Russian absorption of the republics.

Germans Cold To Makeup of Petain Regime

Inclusion of 'Men Re- sponsible for War' De- lays Return to Paris.

PARIS, July 18.—(AP)—(Via Berlin—Delayed.)—German dissatisfaction over the make-up of the government of Marshal Petain was viewed in political quarters today as one of the obstacles to the return of the French government to Paris.

The Paris press published a Berlin dispatch to the effect that Germany, "astonished to find in the new government the influence of men responsible for the war," is maintaining "extreme reserve toward French policy."

French sources said they considered the return of the government to Paris indispensable to cope with urgent problems. Available facilities are lacking in Vichy.

Political differences arising between Vichy and Paris, where the Petain government has been received coldly, also was cited as a reason for the government's return if it is to smooth out matters.

No decision has been reached since Petain asked on July 11 for ministerial quarters in Paris and Versailles, and negotiations are being conducted by Leon Noel, the Vichy regime's delegate to German-held territory.

Despite uncertainty over the return of the entire government, some services are being re-established gradually to carry out central administration of the country.

ATLANTA'S NEW AFTERNOON PAPER
IN THE TEMPO OF THE TIMES

By MATT G. PERKINS, Editor.

Thanks to you, Atlantans! Thank you, Georgians, every one of you! . . . Thank you, North Carolinians and South Carolinians! . . . And, thank you, Alabamans! Thanks to all of you for the thousands of Charter Subscriptions you sent to GRAPHIC!

Thanks, also, for the short notes and the long letters you wrote in praise of GRAPHIC. . . . Your sentiments are proof that the people want a newspaper dependent only upon its readers for support. . . . And, thanks to those who sent checks and money in sums at variance with GRAPHIC'S subscription rates. We appreciate the gesture of good-will, though all remittances will be returned and each subscriber will be billed only for the exact amount due for the time the subscriber has received the paper.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

We cannot begin to answer all the questions asked us. But here are the answers to questions asked most frequently.

When will GRAPHIC get out its first issue?

Does GRAPHIC still want trial subscriptions, even though it will be more than a month before it starts publishing?

To be sure, we want every one of the Charter Subscription coupons we can possibly get. Mind you, the coupon is not a contract for any definite period of time. We think most people will like GRAPHIC. But, being human, we know we can't please everybody. Therefore, the signers of the coupon below are free to cancel their subscription to GRAPHIC at any time after they receive the first copy. We are grateful to the scores of people who sent in Charter Subscription coupons for their friends and neighbors. And we will supply extra Charter Subscription cards to all who wish them.

How can GRAPHIC stay in business without carrying any kind of advertising and all the advertising it can get?

The true function of a newspaper is to print news without fear or favor, to remain free of political affiliation, to be outspoken at all times in matters that affect the public's rights and interests. . . . Newspapers whose chief purpose is to promote advertising did not make this country what it is today. And GRAPHIC does not believe that newspapers with prejudicial ties can utterly block the progress of our democracy, as newspapers did in France. Therefore, we believe that GRAPHIC will be able to break even without revenue from advertising. When circulation has been established we expect to carry enough of a selected class of advertising to earn a fair profit on our investment.

Will GRAPHIC be financed entirely by Georgia capital?

Not a single dollar will be invested in GRAPHIC by a person living outside of Georgia.

Why will GRAPHIC cost thirty cents a week, a nickel more than other newspapers?

Because GRAPHIC will be supported directly by its readers instead of indirectly by its advertisers. This will make GRAPHIC a loyal and devoted servant of its readers. We assure you that there is not the smallest fraction of a cent of excess profit in GRAPHIC'S subscription rate. In fact, the paper must sell for thirty cents a week to keep from losing money.

AMERICAN CITIZENSHIP

Citizens of the United States have always known that their citizenship was a valuable possession. Aliens in this country are realizing now, if they have not before, how valuable an asset American citizenship has become.

For those residents in the United States who have neglected heretofore to seek citizenship, many valuable forms of protection have become or are becoming unavailable.

If you are seeking citizenship and are not sure just how to proceed, you will find the information you seek in the comprehensive bulletin "Citizenship and Naturalization" and in the circular accompanying it, "Questions Asked of Prospective Citizens," both of which you can obtain from The Constitution's Service Bureau, by using the coupon below:

ATLANTA, GA., JULY 22, 1940.

The Sixth Column

When the phrase "Fifth Columnists" was coined during the Spanish civil war, intended to designate those traitors within enemy lines who would betray their fellows, one of the most effective weapons in the armory of modern totalitarian war makers was exposed.

The "Fifth Column" played large part in Germany's conquest of Poland, of Norway, of Denmark, of Holland and of France. England has taken drastic steps to wipe out "Fifth Columnists" within her own land and in the United States, ever since the war emergency arose, there have been many and varied attempts to block the activities of possible agents of a future enemy in this country.

Yet there is, in the United States, a type of man who is more dangerous to our democratic form of government than all possible "Fifth Columnists" combined. That type of man is the public officeholder who uses his office as a means for unlawful personal profit, the appointed or elected official who accepts graft in one form or another and who seeks and holds office primarily for the benefit of himself and of his friends.

Until public office is universally regarded, by Americans, solely as an opportunity for public service, democracy will be weakened and this country will be made ripe for the coming of some dictator, either from abroad or from among ourselves.

The officeholder, prominent or inconspicuous, who accepts graft in any form is a greater foe to the nation than all the Bund leaders and Communist organizers at large. By thus betraying those who have reposed greatest trust upon him, by thus prostituting his post of service into a money-grabbing racket, he weakens the confidence of the people in their form of government and raises the question, in many minds, whether a centralized, all-powerful dictatorship would not, after all, be better.

Men died to make this country free and to assure individual liberty for all the people. Yet some minds must question the value of liberty if it constitutes only the freedom to be robbed by conscienceless officials.

When the corruption of the state government of Louisiana was exposed it became necessary for federal authority at Washington to step in and clean up the mess. That situation, in a southern state, did more to emasculate states' rights than anything that has been done at Washington since the nation was founded.

During the sixties tens of thousands of southerners died on the battlefield for the cause of states' rights. Yet, today, every time a state official in any state, from governor down to the humblest, so far forgets his duty and his honesty as to make necessary investigation by federal authority, he sells his own state's right to govern and to control her affairs for a mess of dishonored pottage.

The Fifth Column," of potential enemy secret agents may be dangerous. But they are an inconsequential menace compared to the "Sixth Column" of dishonest officials who betray their trust and sap the foundations of democracy by accepting graft.

Work for Congress

Now that the sound and the fury of the conventions are over, congress has work to do. It should be done quickly. It should be done without partisan considerations entering the debate. There is much legislation that must have a clear track.

Most pressing is giving authority to the President to call up the National Guard for training. There already has been too much delay for this grave hour.

Most important is passage of the compulsory military training law. In a more placid time, we perhaps could afford to build an army reserve slowly. Today the country must yield to the pressing need for action and the law should immediately be passed so that the business of training an adequate defense reserve can be started before the end of summer.

Provision must also be made for the supplementary defense appropriations and authorizations, designed to make this nation a naval and military power that no combination of nations would dare attack. Industry and government have mustered their most able leaders to prepare this program. It is needed, it is imperative and it is possible of achievement.

There must be an end to blocking of legislation sought by the defense commission to build new resources and supplies, such as was the case in the instance of the new TVA dam, which would have supplied power for a badly needed aluminum plant.

Let these things be done. Then let congress go home, leaving the task of preparedness to those entrusted with it by the nation. But, above all, there must be an end to partisanship until the task is done.

The natty uniforms worn by our training civilians in the camps seem neither too large nor too small—the two standard sizes in the old army.

It Is Not Evidence

Atlanta has, for many years, been extremely fortunate in the men who have headed organized labor in this city and section. No men have contributed more to the advancement and welfare of the city than those who have headed the Atlanta Federation of Trades and who have occupied other important posts in unions of both the AFL and the CIO.

Nevertheless it can only be that those who placed their names to the open letter sent Mayor Kelly, of Chicago, in reference to Columnist Westbrook Pegler, were ill-advised. For the letter was nothing more than a sarcastic attack against Pegler, with no logical contribution or refutation of the charges against some labor officials that Pegler has made in his column.

Pegler has of recent months brought many charges against various individuals holding office in different unions affiliated with the AFL. He has likewise brought charges of corruption among officials of various cities and states. The record shows that, in instance after instance, the Pegler charges have been proven true.

He was one of the first to expose the corruption of the Long machine in Louisiana politics and today high ranking members of the Long hierarchy are wearing prison stripes.

Pegler charged that Willie Boff, actual head of the powerful movie operators' and technicians' union in Los Angeles, was a convicted pander with an unserved sentence hanging over him in Chicago. This was true and Boff was brought back to serve that term.

Pegler leveled his guns against Scasele, head of the service employees' union in New York and today Scasele is under indictment. He has named numerous others and, in no instance, has there been any proof presented to dispute his charges.

President Green, of the AFL, has expressed "confidence" in some of the union officials Pegler has attacked. Yet this is, of course, absolutely no proof of their innocence of the charges made.

If the AFL, beginning with President Green, would accept the Pegler charges as they are intended, the columnist would quickly be revealed as the best friend that organization ever had. For he would be making it possible for the entire organization to "clean house," to get rid of those whose very presence in its ranks gives the entire group a bad name.

The letter to Mayor Kelly from Atlanta, like the Green expressions of "confidence," offers no scintilla of evidence the Pegler charges are false. Organized labor will not improve its position in public opinion by merely dubbing Pegler the "Pure." The only logical answer it can make to Pegler is to get rid of those among its office holders whose records make them vulnerable to Pegler attack and by seeing, in future, that its officials include only such men as are honest and fit for decent citizens to associate with.

As for illogical vituperation or sarcasm Pegler is undoubtedly well able to take care of himself.

Dora, trying, as always, to grasp the war's new phase in the Mediterranean, thought mare nostrum was a horse medicine.

Editorial of the Day

SAD DAYS FOR CORDELL HULL

(From the Beaumont Enterprise.)

These must be days of rueful introspection for Cordell Hull, although he is mentioned as a presidential possibility and probably could have the vice presidential nomination if he wanted it. He does not want it.

For the greater part of his long career in congress Cordell Hull devoted himself to a study of foreign trade. It was a proud moment in his life when the administration's reciprocal trade policy, which Mr. Hull's brain child, was put into effect.

There was noticeable in nearly every statement Mr. Hull gave out in regard to his trade program, after he became secretary of state, the satisfaction of a man who sees many years of work about to be brought to a fruitful consummation.

And why should he not be proud? Why should he not emphasize, over and over, in his addresses and interviews that mutually beneficial trade relations are a guarantee of world peace? He merely told the truth, and the truth was self-evident.

Comes a former house painter and World War corporal who upsets Mr. Hull's carefully laid plans for making this a better world in which to live. Hitler's conquests of Europe have destroyed Mr. Hull's objectives and virtually destroyed the other. World peace was shattered by the Hitler drive into Poland and subsequent developments abroad have for the time being, and perhaps for a long time to come knocked Mr. Hull's reciprocal trade policy into a cocked hat, so far as Europe is concerned. If the totalitarians have their way, Mr. Hull's trade program will be wrecked in South America, also.

In fact, the administration, acting under the pressure of events abroad which threaten economic warfare against this hemisphere, now proposes to set up an inter-American cartel which itself conflicts with reciprocal trade agreements. So if Mr. Hull feels a bit depressed about the foreign situation in general and the foreign trade situation in particular, he has good reasons for his pessimism.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN CHICAGO, July 21.—The proof that something very saddening happened here in Chicago is not to be found in the crowds of triumph of the men who hate the President so blindly they would sacrifice anything to his destruction. It is to be found, rather, in the deep distress of many of those who have followed him most devotedly, and still look most expectantly for great things from him.

Precisely what did happen, one of the men of good will towards Roosevelt summed it up simply:

"At the most critical time our country has known since the Civil War, in defiance of an ancient tradition, the President was nominated for a third term by a worse than ordinary, purely political convention, with all that implies in meanness, shuffling and cheap compromise. You can argue it was all right to renominate him, but it wasn't all right to do it that way."

What might have happened? The answer to this second question is to be found in the program which a few of the men of good will desperately pressed upon the President while the convention was in progress.

WHO COMPROMISED? The whole story cannot be told.

Sufficient to say that a small and earnest band, including both political leaders and publicists, were horrified at what went on here. Being horrified, they mobilized every ally they could find to bring home the true picture and suggest remedy to the White House. Their remedy was different from the policy followed by the man in charge here, Harry L. Hopkins, because their conception of the convention differed from Hopkins' conception.

Hopkins appeared to be terrified from the start that the President might not be nominated. He enraged James A. Farley and the other anti-third term leaders by attempting to snatch from them their tiny handfuls of delegates. He compromised with the isolationist senators to prevent an anti-third term resolution from reaching the floor. He encouraged the President to keep up the ridiculous pretense that he really hardly knew what was happening in Chicago. In general, he treated all possible enemies with mingled fear and suspicion, joyfully took allies among the Ed Kellys and Frank Hague, and hastily made a deal wherever a deal seemed likely to head off even the most momentary trouble.

The men of good will assumed, on the other hand, that the President's nomination was inevitable not because the delegates loved him, or because in their hearts they had ceased to dislike the third term idea, but because the vast majority of delegates were place-hunters or job holders who thought the President the only candidate they could conceivably win with in November. Therefore, instead of Hopkins' policy of getting the President to compromise with the convention, the men of good-will proposed to force the convention to compromise with the President.

TAKE IT OR LEAVE IT Specifically, as they discovered what the Hopkins and Kellys et al were up to, the men of good-will urged the President to abandon his pose of aloofness and disinterest. This pose, they pointed out, could not deceive the simplest voter, yet savored disagreeably of the shortsighted "country cuteness" which dictated the disastrous strategy of the supreme court bill. It would be far better, they argued, for the President to be boldy frank with the people.

If they had had their way, the President would have issued a statement as early as possible in the convention proceedings, or better still, would have made a brief radio address to the first meeting of the delegates, he would have ignored his enemies, instead of attacking them as he did in his speech Thursday night. He would have let his record talk for itself, instead of defending it. And he would have said something like this:

"In the memory of living man, our republic has never faced dangers so great to all that we hold dear. Within a few weeks, perhaps, England will go under, and England's navy will fall into enemy hands. While there is still time, we must do all that we can to help our brothers in freedom. Within two months, perhaps, will come a threat to our own hemisphere. When that time comes, we must attempt to make the protecting aegis of the Monroe Doctrine a thing of deeds, not words. Every American in such times must give all that is in him to his country.

"I do not want to serve another term in the great office which I now hold. I shall not accept renomination except on the clear understanding that my party will support me in all the difficult measures, calling for the utmost self-denial courage and sacrifice, which we in America must take if we are not to succumb meekly to the dark menace of a world tyranny. But if my party wishes to give me the nomination on that understanding I shall accept."

THE REWARD OF COURAGE To any one not completely unable to see the forest of politics for the trees of special interest and special pressure, the effect such a message would have produced must be immediately clear. The President would have done a great thing in a great way.

The delegates would have responded as decent men and women always respond to courage and forthrightness.

There was nothing to be feared from courage and forthrightness. The Burton K. Wheeler and Bennett Champ Clarks might have foamed at the mouth at such a message, but they could have obtained only a small protest vote from a convention determined the President was the only man who could win. The anti-third termers might have gained brief courage, but there would have been little strength to the anti-third term movement if Hopkins had had the sense to tell Jim Farley at the start of the convention:

"Jim, we know this is hard on you. We know what great service you have done the party. We want you to get your full vote on the first ballot, as a demonstration of the party's gratitude."

The President would have been renominated by a vote almost as great as he got, and in an atmosphere wholly different from the sordid atmosphere that prevailed in Chicago.

Unfortunately, the men of good-will failed in their main effort, although some of the less displeasing events at the convention may be laid at their door. As a result, in this desperately critical time, the campaign begins on the low level of undiluted party politics. And that is not a good augury, either for the President's success or for the welfare of the country.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

Convention Exhaustion.

Before they left for Chicago, those of my friends who attended the Democratic national convention, I condoned with them over the sad fate to which they were doomed. Remarked I was glad they were going, but wouldn't go myself for any reason short of imperative duty.

They came back, last Saturday, and told of meals eaten always at the wrong times, of sleep broken and delayed, of excitement and heat and weariness.

And I smiled to myself and thought how easily I could say those words so delicious to the sayer, "I told you so!"

Then, however, I thought of the long vigils with the radio I had myself put in, listening to that convention. I thought of my own sleep delayed three or four hours nightly and I thought of the tired feeling around the old eyes when morning getting-up time rolled around.

I decided that, like them, I too would be a few days getting over the convention. The radio has brought suffering right into the modern home, you see.

Peculiar Effect.

Referring to the tired eyes, I'm experiencing as this is written a most peculiar feeling. Have just received a new pair of glasses—the eye doc says a man of my age should have his vision checked and probably get new glasses about every other year. Well, it has been nearly three years since my last change.

The new ones are much better. I can see clearer, both distant and near vision and the eyes are already feeling less weary and sore. But these new ones make me feel about a foot taller than formerly. Rather, the sidewalk or floor seems a foot or so further away. Feel as though I'm standing and walking on an elevation all the time.

Even though I'm not yet in my 'teen years and your body is small and stunted because of privation.

Suppose I'll get used to 'em soon, but it is a most peculiar sensation for the time being.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Testimonial CHICAGO, July 21—it

To Jim Farley is not given to every man to listen to the eulogies of his own wake, but Jim Farley enjoyed that experience last week, and, from the early signs at a testimonial party, I speculate that before dawn more than one loving friend of Mr. Farley will be called outside to decide with another which one has known him the longer and admires him the more. The testimonial dinner, as a rule, are tawdry travesties on friendship arranged by pushful satellites with intent to gratiate themselves with the guest of honor or conspired in cold blood as a means

Willkie Works On His Speech Of Acceptance

Conference With Publishers Consumes Part of Candidate's Day.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., July 21.—(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie did some preliminary work today on his nomination acceptance address and chatted with Publishers Gardner Cowles Jr., of Des Moines, and John Cowles, of Minneapolis.

The Republican presidential candidate spent part of the day loafing in his apartment. He will leave tomorrow for Denver, remain there overnight and go by train to the frontier days rodeo at Cheyenne, Wyo., Tuesday.

Willkie told reporters he probably would fly from the rodeo to Salt Lake City to attend a Latter-Day Saints celebration, then return directly to Colorado Springs to resume work on the acceptance speech.

Plan To Use More Cotton To Be Studied

Textile Institute President Will Visit Several Southern States.

Cotton mill owners, operators and representatives throughout the south will have opportunity this week to hear first hand discussion of the Cotton Textile Institute's plan to increase domestic cotton consumption to 10,000,000 bales a year.

Starting today at Raleigh, N. C., Dr. Claudius T. Murchison, president of the institute, will launch a southern tour which will touch all parts of the cotton producing belt.

Charlotte and Spartanburg will be visited on Wednesday, Atlanta and Columbus on Thursday, Birmingham on Friday, and New Orleans on August 1.

"To attain annual domestic consumption of 10,000,000 bales would seem to be a miraculous feat, yet careful study of all markets and of all applications encourage the belief that this hitherto unheard-of figure can be achieved," Dr. Murchison said.

While in Atlanta Thursday, Dr. Murchison will be the honor guest at a luncheon of the Cotton Manufacturers Association of Georgia. J. A. Miller, of Atlanta, president of that group, said yesterday that new uses for cotton would be discussed. Miller will preside at the luncheon.

WHERE THE TALL CORN GROWS—Like the true farmer he is, Henry A. Wallace had to see how that personal patch of sweet Iowa corn was coming along when he returned to his Des Moines home to rest up following nomination by the Democratic party for vice president.

Missionary Society of the Capitol View Baptist church will meet at 2:30 o'clock today at the home of Mrs. J. R. Higgins, 1385 Graham Street, S. W.

Classes for the young people of the Kirkwood vicinity will be held from 7 until 9:15 o'clock tonight and each night through Thursday at the Kirkwood Methodist church in observance of Youth Crusade Week. The Rev. J. R. Turner and the Rev. Rembert Sisson will conduct the classes for the seniors and young people and Miss Louise Coker will have charge of the intermediates.

Victims of Nazi Raiders Land at Dominican Port

SAMANA, Dominican Republic, July 21.—(AP)—Twenty-five British sailors from the Davision, one of the British merchant ships sunk last week by a German raider in the West Indies, were landed today by the Norwegian freighter Leif.

The freighter picked them up northeast of this island republic in the deepest known water of the Atlantic ocean.

The sailors said the raider was an armed German merchant ship. The captain and engineer of the Davision were reported taken aboard and held.

REDS SENTENCE DEACON.

MOSCOW, July 21.—(AP)—The Atheist League organ Bazbozhnik reported today a former deacon who taught in a rural school had been sentenced to five years imprisonment for "wrecking schools, spreading religious fables and beating children."

Good Morning—By Louie D. Newton

Mark Sullivan, in his column in The Constitution, July 17, wrote what I regard as the most significant single paragraph I have seen on the Chicago convention. Writing under the title, "Troubled Delegates," Mr. Sullivan, in the closing paragraph of July 17, said:

"These Democrats are learning the most sombre lesson of our time—that a first step away from the settled forms of government and society leads to a second step and the second to a third; that the process becomes automatic, cumulative and finally fatal."

Put that paragraph alongside some of the observations of McGill, Pegler and others of that brilliant group of columnists who covered the convention and you

Smokers: SAVE THE COST OF THE STATE CIGARETTE TAX

Smokers who live in communities where certain state cigarette taxes are in effect can save the cost of the tax—and, in some instances, more—through smoking Camels. (See above.) When you are a Camel smoker, you get this unique economy—and all the extra enjoyment of cooler, milder smoking—the fragrance and delicate taste of finer, more costly tobaccos.

Pertinax Believes Britain Will Win

NEW YORK, July 21.—(AP)—Andre Geraud, the French political commentator famed for his "pipe-line" forecasts of international developments, said today he thought the British would be able to withstand Germany's onslaught. He said his opinion was based on more than just wishful thinking.

Geraud, who writes under the name Pertinax, arrived with his wife from Montreal. He left France June 17 upon the capitulation, and went to England, reaching Canada a few days ago on a British refugee ship. Geraud plans to stay in New York indefinitely.

Metz Annexes Chicago Open With 278 Total

Revolta Misses Eagle Two by Inches on Last Hole for Tie.

CHICAGO, July 21.—(AP)—Daper Dick Metz, golf's gamest "glamour boy," outlasted a crack field today to win the $5,000 Chicago open championship with a 72-hole total of 278 strokes—an even 10 under par for Tam O'Shanter's tricky layout.

The handsome professional from Oak Park, Ill., who still takes treatment for muscle injuries suffered in an accident three years ago, posted final rounds of 69 and 70 today—and then watched some of the greatest experts in the game try in vain to knock him out of first prize money of $1,500.

All of Metz' four rounds were under par 72. He opened Friday with a 68 and came back with a 71 Saturday before trimming par by five strokes today on his last two excursions. But he had to be that good—for right up to the final threesome his score was in danger of being bettered or tied in a furious finish which drew applause from a huge gallery of more than 8,000 fans.

The two stars who tied for second place with totals of 279, Johnny Revolta, Evanston, Ill., and Ben Hogan, New York, furnished most of the finishing fireworks. Revolta, with rounds of 67, 69 and 74, posted, came to the final green needing an eagle two to tie. His second shot, a 150-yard iron, missed the cup by inches, and he had to be content with an easy birdie of a final round of 69.

Hogan, with a 73-70 to his credit, had rounds of 70 and 66, missing a tie when he blew a chance for an easy par at No. 14 on his last round by flubbing a chip shot. Right back off Revolta and Hogan came Amateur Jim Ferrier, of Australia, who made a fine showing with rounds of 66, 63, 72 and 69. On his last round he went out in 33 but could do no better than match par on the incoming nine.

Ralph Guldahl was another star holding a chance going into the final round, but he slipped to a 73, one over par, after posting scores of 69-68-72. His aggregate of 282 was just a stroke under the total posted by a Chicago veteran, Jim Foulis, who had rounds to day of 70-71. Gene Sarazen had 286, as did Willie Turnesa, former national amateur champion. This was a stroke under the aggregate of another amateur, Wilford Wehrle, and Lawson Little, the national open champion.

Moncrief Furnace Company Installs Church Heating System

Oakland City Baptists Get Modern Plant

Large Addition to Church Just Completed; Has 1,175 Members.

The Oakland City Baptist church, under the direct supervision of G. Everett Millican, chairman of the building committee, has about completed an addition to their building which will give them one of the most complete church plants in the south. All material and equipment is of the most modern type, including a complete heating and air circulating system installed by the Moncrief Furnace Company.

Rev. E. Steele, who has been pastor of the church for the past seven years, was very enthusiastic about the successful completion of the building campaign. "I am sure that when our church was founded in 1909," said Rev. Mr. Steele, "the organizer's little dreamt that during the comparatively short period of 31 years our congregation would grow to the point where it required this magnificent building to properly provide for our people. But, with a membership now of approximately 1,175, we expect to make full use of this new building, which has a Sunday school plant to accommodate over 1,000, not counting, of course, our fine auditorium." On the recommendation of J. A. Cooksey, the architect, the building committee placed the heating contract with the Moncrief Furnace Company. The modern forced circulating heating system which has been installed is arranged to give quick and thorough heating of the entire building in winter and also provide ample air for circulation and cooling in the summer.

Moncrief Furnace Company in this installation drew on their wide experience in the installation of heating systems in schools and churches throughout the south. The same engineering department which handled the installation of this system has handled installations of heating equipment in many thousands of homes in Atlanta and vicinity.

Distributing Service Given By Crumley

Thorough House-to-House Distribution by Experienced Men.

To those concerns who have house-to-house distribution carried on throughout the year—or even an occasional job of this kind—it would be to their interest to call the Crumley Distributing Service, at 75 Hunter street, S. W.

This company has been engaged in house-to-house distribution for more than 21 years. It is outstanding in its field of work, and housewives have learned that the neatly uniformed Crumley distributors are courteous and considerate, and homeowners welcome the visits of the Crumley men, for they often bring samples and other material of interest and value to the housewife.

Sampling and distributing advertising matter is not a sideline with this firm, it was pointed out by Mr. Crumley.

"We do only one thing, and we believe in doing that well," Mr. Crumley said.

For the last 15 years the Crumley firm has had charge of the semi-annual distribution of telephone directories, one of the largest distributing tasks any concern could undertake.

Many nationally known companies use the Crumley service to get their samples and other material to thousands of Atlanta homes.

"We distribute circulars, cards, folders, samples or anything of this sort, where the merchant or client desires his product—whether sample goods or printed matter—to actually reach the hands of those in the home," says Mr. Crumley.

"We do distributing for Atlanta's largest department stores—the chain stores and independent merchants of the city.

"Also, we do a very great deal of national advertising—distributing booklets, circulars, almanacs, samples, etc., for national advertisers all over the country.

"We have a place of business and ample storage room at 75 Hunter street, S. W., and if anything goes wrong we can be gotten in touch with, whereas with help picked up from day to day such could not be the case."

Get in Swing With the 1940 Farm Methods

This Is Repeated Advice of B. F. Almand Jr. to His Patrons.

B. F. Almand Jr., of the Almand Implement Company, at 125 South Forsyth street, S. W., with 16 years' experience in handling farm and dairy implements and accessories, is proving himself a friend and counselor to those who till the soil and operate dairies throughout this section.

His advice offered through these columns several months ago has good effect on the farming and dairying interests. He said then—and it is good advice today:

"Get in swing with the 1940 methods of Georgia's farm and dairy industry. To be in step with the times you must know why the tractor is replacing the mule, why the combine is replacing the binder, why the hay chopper is replacing the silo filler and why the sanitary handling of milk is replacing the old hand methods."

There is much truth in Mr. Almand's advice. One must keep abreast of the times to win success in any line. He continues as follows:

"Contact my experienced salesmen, who can tell you why they are in position to serve you with equipment made by John Deere, Pape, Planet Jr., Cole, etc., and that my company is a continuation of an independent business established in 1895, and that for sales and service our slogan, 'Everything for the farm and dairy,' is as good as 45 years ago."

Farm machinery, dairy supplies, pumps and water systems, wire fencing, steel posts, gates, ensilage cutters, grinders and hay choppers, mower repairs, barn equipment, plow repairs, harrow repairs, AICO dairy cleaner.

3-Year Quota For Tobacco Voted by 6 to 1

Six-State Referendum Shows Decisive Approval of Plan.

ATHENS, Ga., July 21.—(AP)—Growth of cigarette type tobacco voted at the rate of more than six to one in a six-state referendum yesterday to restrict their production for the next three years to a government-stamped maximum.

Their objective in the first long-range test of crop control was to bolster prices by growing less tobacco than is consumed each year maximum.

and dispose of a surplus now hampering the markets.

Administrative Adjustment Administration officials announced virtually complete returns showed 86.7 per cent in favor of the three-year plan well above the majority of two-thirds required for approval.

A late tabulation showed 159,740 for the three-year program; 3,354 for the one-year plan, and 21,119 against quotas.

Roberts Praises Choice of Wallace

COLUMBUS, Ga., July 21.—(AP)

The south faces the brightest future for agriculture ever experienced in its history, Columbus Roberts, state commissioner of agriculture and candidate for governor of Georgia, declared here last night as he championed selection of Henry Wallace, secretary of agriculture, as the Democratic vice presidential nominee.

Roberts said he was surprised that Mr. Wallace was nominated, but said he was pleased with the selection, and that he believes the Roosevelt-Wallace ticket will be equally as popular at the polls as the Roosevelt-Garner ticket of four years ago.

The cotton, tobacco and peanut growing states will be strong for it and in the west Wallace will be much stronger than was Garner in the last election, Roberts declared.

Augusta Man Named Head of Postal Clerks

Federation Picks Columbus as 1941 Convention City

MACON, Ga., July 21.—(AP)—

Georgia Federation of Post Office Clerks, closing its annual convention here last night, elected J. Cortez Powell, of Augusta, president and selected Columbus as the 1941 convention city.

Powell succeeds Homer W. Smith, of Brookhaven. The vice presidents were elected and Sherman Rod Collins Jr., of Waycross, was chosen secretary-treasurer to succeed W. W. Green, of Albany.

The women's auxiliary, in joint session with the clerks, re-elected Mrs. H. J. McGhee, of Atlanta, as president; Mrs. S. E. Price, of Atlanta, as secretary-treasurer, and chose eight vice-presidents.

Vice presidents elected by the federation were J. A. Sligh, of Atlanta; J. W. Moss, of Augusta; Ernest C. Moore, of Macon; William Sanders, of Albany; W. F. Dickens, of Thomaston; Clyde C. Smith, of Brunswick; M. M. Adams, of Gainesville; E. P. Kirkland, of Columbus, and R. D. Trimble, of Savannah.

The auxiliary's vice presidents are Mrs. H. B. Collins, of Savannah; Mrs. Ernest C. Moore, of Macon; Mrs. W. W. Burnette, of Augusta; Mrs. L. E. Roan, of Albany; Mrs. C. L. Driskell, of Waycross; Mrs. Frank L. Groce, of Macon; Mrs. F. L. Crespo, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Rhodes Mahone, of Columbus.

The annual convention banquet and the posal ball occupied attention of delegates last night. The grand march was directed by J. Boykin Drew, of Atlanta, and led by Mr. and Mrs. W. Houston Blair, of Atlanta.

3,368 Voters Dropped From Lists in Gwinnett

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., July 21.—After a thorough purge of the Gwinnett county voters' list, a loss of 3,368 out of 11,170 voters was discovered.

The registrar's report shows that 2,463 voters were removed from the list as disqualified for different reasons, and 905 were disqualified for being tax defaulters. A total of 7,802 qualified voters remained. Sugar Hill district showed 341 tax defaulters, and Lawrenceville district came next with 120.

Court Decrees Mistrial

In Manslaughter Case

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION

ROME, Ga., July 21.—Judge Claude H. Porter, of Floyd supercourt, declared a mistrial yesterday in the case of Herman Johnson, local automobile salesman charged with manslaughter in connection with the fatal injury of Andrew Jackson Nichols, 22, in a traffic mishap here in February, 1939.

Johnson had won a new trial on appeal, following conviction of involuntary manslaughter during the January term of court. He had been sentenced to serve one year in the penitentiary.

State Briefs

MINERAL SURVEY

ROME, Ga., July 21.—A county-wide mineral survey project employing 20 WPA workers will be launched here tomorrow, following approval of the Floyd county board of roads and revenue, at the request of the Rome Chamber of Commerce. Quality and quantity of natural resources in the county for possible use either in war or peace will be determined by the survey. Considerable quantities of manganese, bauxite and iron are known to exist in Floyd county.

4,000 GIVEN AID.

ROME, Ga., July 21.—Nearly 4,000 persons were given various types of aid by four Floyd county agencies during the first six months of 1940, according to reports issued yesterday by the county welfare board, the probation and juvenile officer, the hospital fund director and the home for the aged.

SCHOOLS TO OPEN.

CALHOUN, Ga., July 21.—Nineteen Gordon county schools will begin a six-week summer term Friday, it was announced here today by Max V. Tolbert, county school superintendent. The opening date was scheduled for July 19, but due to weather conditions had been postponed.

QUAIL RELEASED.

CALHOUN, Ga., July 21.—C. B. David, president of the Gordon County Sportsman's Club, said today that a number of quail had been released on Gordon county farms. The quail were obtained from the state quail hatchery at Decatur. The club, which was organized under the direction of Glenn Bryant, wild life ranger, has several hundred additional birds on hand which are to be used for brood stock next year.

Friends, Foes Of Third Term Clash on Radio

Solicitor General Biddle Says F.D.R. Needed; 2 Speakers Oppose.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—Solicitor General Francis Biddle declared tonight that "in this national crisis" President Roosevelt was "better qualified to lead the country" than the ex-president of the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, while two other speakers warned that a third term would menace democracy.

Senator Burke, Democrat, Nebraska, who announced that he would support Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican nominee, and C. Wayland Brooks, Republican Illinois senatorial nominee, participated with Biddle and Representative Rayburn, Democrat, Texas, house majority leader, in a radio forum on the campaign.

Charge Business Tie-Up.

Biddle said that "generally speaking, the Republicans have the great conservative group, representing big business," and that "this year the old tradition is dramatically evident—the ex-president of the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, adored by big business, is the Republican choice."

Burke contended that "in view of world trends in 1940 and particularly in consideration of certain qualities of the present occupant of the office of chief executive, the continuance of this rule that requires the surrender of authority on a fixed day becomes of the utmost importance," and "should be the decisive consideration."

G. O. P. Defended.

Brooks asserted that "power is driving free expression and democratic processes from the world," and that the Republican party presented its nominees "as the only possible protection against the encroaching military power of Europe and the encroaching political power in America."

Rayburn inquired which New Deal measures the Republicans would repeal, and said that if they were worthy of support they should be "administered by friends and not critics."

Germany Ready; Nazis Tell Britain

NEW YORK, July 21.—(AP)—"All preparations for the attack are complete," the German radio told British listeners tonight in a broadcast heard here by Columbia Broadcasting System's short wave listening station.

The German announcer said German troops are rested, the front against Britain has been consolidated from Norway to the Spanish border, and "German armaments production has reached a state where in some branches even over-saturation is noticeable."

To prepare the nation for shock to world economy and finance which will follow Germany's expected victory in the European war.

Prince Konoye was said to be hopeful that traditional economic ties with the United States can be maintained but to be determined that the United States must recognize Japan as an equal and a nation that cannot be "bluffed" by threats of American economic pressure.

Cab Driver Is Slain On Alabama Road

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
ROANOKE, Ala., July 21.—Guy Yates, Roanoke taxicab driver, was found shot to death Saturday night on what is known as the Weday highway 1 1/2 miles northeast of here.

Yates was shot four times in the back, according to Roanoke police, who said that the motive was apparently to steal his taxi, as the 28-year-old youth's pockets were not looted.

Lookout notices were broadcast for the taxi which is a 1939 black Chevrolet coach with Alabama tag No. 965-X2. The car was reported to have been seen headed west in the direction of Alexander City, Ala., some time after the murder.

Plans Discussed For Labor Day

Tentative plans were made yesterday by the general Labor Day committee of the Atlanta Federation of Trades for the celebration of Labor Day in Atlanta.

Plans were outlined for radio addresses in the morning before the parade by Dewey Johnson, president of the Georgia Federation of Labor, and Albert Gossett.

Following the parade there will be a program of games and addresses at Grant park beginning at 2:30 o'clock.

Body of Missing Girl, 14, Found on Army Grounds

FORT SNELLING, Minn., July 21.—(AP)—The body of Mary Jane Massey, 14, who had been missing since July 13, was found buried in an oil drum on the United Army military reservation here today.

Deputy Coroner Otto Brunde of St. Paul said it was a murder, and the case was turned over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Mary Jane was the daughter of Sergeant William A. Massey, of Fort Snelling, who had led a search for her since her disappearance. Massey and two St. Paul detectives found the drum.

British Volunteer, Son, Capture Bomber Crew

LONDON, July 21.—(AP)—A local defense volunteer and his son, both unidentified, captured the crew of a German bomber in southeast England today, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported.

The volunteer and his son saw the German machine twisting and diving just above the treetops in an effort to shake off British fighters. A final burst of machinegun fire brought the bomber down. The two ran across the field where the plane had fallen. The man drew his revolver and disarmed the crew, two of whom had been wounded.

The mosquitoes were so blood-filled they could not fly, he said

Italy Forbids Exports To Assure Ample Supply

ROME, July 22.—(Monday)—(P)—A government decree made public today prohibits all exports from Italy except those deemed profitable to the national economy.

The decree gave its aims as regulation of currency control and assurance of internal provisions.

Political Races Developing In Dublin Section

Candidates Seek Posts of Solicitor, Legislators, Aldermen.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
DUBLIN, Ga., July 21.—Politics, city, county and district, hummed merrily today.

W. W. Larsen Jr., young Dublin attorney and son of the late congressman from this district, announced officially his candidacy for solicitor-general of the Dublin judicial circuit, bringing to two the number with hats already in the political ring. Judge J. Eugene Cook, of Wrightsville previously had announced his candidacy for the solicitor's post in the Laurens-Twigg-Johnson circuit.

Representative Ed L. Evans, seeking his second term, paid his qualifying fee in the race for post No. 2 in the general assembly from Laurens county. Friends of Robert L. Hogan, Dudley banker and farmer, had entered Hogan's name for post No. 1. Representative W. H. Lovett, holder of that post, announced he would seek re-election.

E. L. Stephens Jr., young Dublin attorney, has announced his candidacy for post No. 2 and B. H. Lord, Dublin railroadman, has announced he is contemplating seeking one of the legislative positions.

Bruce Suggs, Dublin railroad man, elected in a special vote to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of D. Sessions, who became mayor, announced for re-election in the city race set for August 14, when three aldermen from the city-at-large will be named.

In Washington Representative Wright Patman, Democrat, Texas, said last night "A statement that the subcommittee of the Dies committee has exonerated Carl Boor is too hasty, since I have not been heard by the committee in connection with the charges."

In Washington Representative Dempsey, Democrat, New Mexico, said a house subcommittee had cleared Boor, New York publicist, of charges of un-American activities.

Patman had accused Boor of pro-Naziism, asserting the New Yorker had handled Nazi propaganda in the United States.

Patman said in a statement:

"I have sworn testimony to support every charge that I made and I will continue to urge the charges until complete justice is done."

The testimony shows that Carl Boor sent George Sylvester Vierrick, a noted World War German propagandist, to Germany soon after January, 1933, when Hitler came into power, and obtained a contract for himself and Vierrick to sell Hitlerism to America."

Atlanta and Fulton county will complete plans today on the part they are to play in the vocational training of students under the national defense program.

A joint meeting of the city and county advisory committees will be held at 12:30 o'clock at Rich's tea room for the purpose of completing plans for the work program, Paul D. West, chairman of the county committee, said.

West said the meeting will be attended by representatives of labor, the State Department of Education and Georgia Tech.

Get Doctor's Permission To Exercise

By Ida Jean Kain

It's just human nature to try to place the blame for the loss of anything on something as far beyond one's control as possible. The woman with a fine family and not much figure is always qualifying her praise of a streamlined friend with: "Of course, she has never had any children!"

But how account for Joan Bennett, Joan Blondell and Norma Shearer, with two children apiece? For Mts. Bing Crosby, with five—including twins! And for the svelte Mrs. Joseph Kennedy, with nine! Every one of these women has an exceptionally lovely figure. It would not be exaggerating to call them streamlined.

The truth is that while it is easy to lose your figure at this time, it is not necessary. The reason so many women do is that they neglect to take specific exercise following the baby's arrival—and some of them never take enough exercise to count from that time on!

Nature doesn't take care of toning and shortening stretched muscles without your co-operation. The amount of exercise required for you to get back into shape depends on how good you were about exercising before you started to have a baby. If your muscles were in good tone, it's easy. If they were flabby, you have a hard—but by no means impossible—task ahead.

Mild exercise can be started surprisingly early. The first may be taken the day after the baby's arrival. . . . Lie on your back and raise your head from the bed several times. Just that—but it's exercise! On the second day you can do a bit of arm exercise. Hold the arms straight up in front, chest level, then swing them down on the bed at the sides, shoulder-level. On the third day, stretch the arms overhead on the bed, then lower down at sides. Also, on the second and third days, you can roll over and lie on the abdomen for as long as 30 minutes. Place a pillow under the chest to protect the breasts.

With your doctor's approval, exercise may be slightly increased toward the end of the second week of confinement. Flex the knees, feet on bed, and draw up and in with the lower abdominal muscles. At the same time, raise the arms overhead. Hold, release. Relax between each exercise and make the movements slow and easy.

By the beginning of the third week you may be equal to fairly active exercise. From the knee-flexed position, draw alternate knees up toward the chest until the thigh rests on the abdomen. Perform slowly and do not repeat more than six to eight times.

From this position, hold the knees together, feet slightly off bed. Separate knees as widely as comfortable, then bring together again. Do not repeat more than six times.

Still lying on back, stretch legs down, heels together. Bend left knee out to the side, resting the leg on bed, place the foot on the right leg and draw it up along the bed until it is close to the right knee. Then slide the foot back down. Continue for three counts, each leg.

By the fourth week you will probably be ready for the exercise leaflet, "After the Baby Exercises," for which you may send.

Even though your family is all grown up, it is not too late to recondition stretched abdominal muscles.

Consult Your Own Physician About Low Blood Pressure

By Dr. William Brady.

"One reads a good deal about hypertension (high blood pressure)," remarks a medical colleague who has contributed many good ideas or suggestions to this column. "One should know all about it, but blimey if one can learn anything about low blood pressure. I have searched all the current textbooks and current periodicals and can't find anything about it. I believe you are afraid of it like the rest of them."

Colleague goes on to say that he finds low blood pressure in many patients, and along with it subnormal temperature. He himself, at 62, has excellent health except a couple of teeth that need attention, but his blood pressure is always low and his body temperature is generally a degree or so below the average normal.

Frankly I'm not afraid of it, just a bit shy of it. In the years I have been conducting this continuous column it has been my experience, whenever I have taken a position not in accord with the theories, traditions or principles of the old-timers, that they have used every weapon available to them in the attempt to malign and if possible to silence me. I can take it when the question at issue is of importance, such as the injection treatment of hernia, the diathermy extirpation of tonsils or the ambulant treatment of hemorrhoids.

Low blood pressure, after all, is a sign or a secondary effect of one thing and another, not a symptom (a manifestation of which the patient is conscious or aware) nor an ailment which responds to any specific remedy. So why should I, as a teacher of health, sound off on the subject and so perhaps add to the popular introspection or worry about such an unimportant matter?

In this column, notwithstanding requests to the contrary, I have never given any definite information concerning the blood pressure, high or low or even "normal." Nor have I ever wasted good space mentioning degrees of body temperature. I believe these are purely technical data in every instance and the intelligent layman will leave them to the judgment of the physician. This is my advice. Let the wiseacres who think they know better take it or leave it.

There is one suggestion I have to offer in regard to low blood pressure. I offer it because I am certain it can do no harm in any case.

In my opinion the fundamental fault in most cases of this description is malnutrition, particularly habitual shortage of the essential vitamins, B complex and D, and of calcium in the everyday food. At any rate, a great many readers who have followed this suggestion for a few months report uniform improvement. Such nutritional deficiency is common, due to our modern refined diet. Adequate daily intake of vitamin B complex, vitamin D and calcium restores tone to the heart muscle and the muscle of the arterial wall.

A Flattering Button-Front Mode

By Lillian Mae.

This trim Lillian Mae frock is double proof that "looks are deceiving!" For Pattern 4462 not only makes you look inches slimmer, but it has an expensive air that belies its low cost. That button-front is smart, slenderizing and convenient for "hurry up" dressing. See how the buttons may be gayly repeated on the becoming revers. Those long, pointed side bodice sections are an outstanding fashion feature and give unusual figure-flattery with their smooth bias cut. There are front and back skirt panels. The pointed tabs add a nice finish to the sleeves—have the revers and tabs in fresh contrast if you like. Don't delay in ordering this graceful pattern!

Pattern 4462 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 4 3/4 yards 35-inch fabric.

Women Like Men Who Are Neat

By Yolande Gwin.

It is a true saying that clothes make the man.

And it is also true that clothes make a man a success or a failure.

There is something about a man who wears shabby clothes that defines success. He looks lazy.

He looks like a man who works day in and day out in a rut, with no ambition, no plans and no ideas for his future. Shoes run down at the heel are the first give-away to a man's character. All men cannot afford an array of good-looking suits, dozens of shirts, 12 hats and a tie for every day in the week, but there is no excuse for a man who appears shabby and unneat.

The girls often wail, "What kind of woman do men like best?"

Well, thank heaven, not all men like the same kind of woman. (If they did what would become of all the brunettes?)

The men should realize that sometimes the shoe is on the other foot, and ask themselves what kind of a man do the women like.

So here is the pay-off.

Women like men who are neat and smartly dressed. A woman likes to go out with a man who does her credit, and not one who wears like a tramp she found along the way.

Nothing gives a man such a thrill as to see a lot of eyes turned to admire the woman who preaches him down the theater aisle or into a restaurant.

The same is true of a woman. If she can see her ex-rival turn green with envy as she enters a place with her one and only, the day will be a success. But will the ex-rival give the man a second glance if he doesn't look as snappy and well-dressed as he did in the old days?

Not on your life! It is up to the wife to keep him looking like the well-dressed man, even if he has gotten fat and forty-ish.

$15 Under Tongue

Floyd Wright of Battle Creek, Mich., suffered the discomfort of biting currency under his tongue, but to no avail. He confessed robbing Mrs. Bertona McAllister after she had identified him. The loot—two $10 and one $5 bills—was carefully concealed beneath Wright's tongue.

Girl Submits List for Ideal Man

She Believes She Will Be Model Wife

By Caroline Chatfield.

Here's a letter from a young miss who opens up by telling the world what a whiz of a wife she would make for a model husband and winds up by admitting that she will have her mad money in pocket when she marches to the altar. If she can locate and lasso a lad who has all the virtues on her must list (she can't if he sees the list) she will have occasion to use her mad money, for any girl that enters marriage with the selfish determination to get full measure and also with the reservation to run out if the measure is short is as good for divorce as a ninepence for a tickler.

Dear Miss Chatfield: The letter of the "Young Grad" was of great interest to me and I am very glad to know that there is at least one young man with high ideals for a wife. I have been looking for one of these men for a long time, but have as yet to meet one that wanted the perfect wife and could offer her the same things. I am not conceited, but I can truthfully say that I can live up to the 10 "essential points" of a wife, and then add a few. What I would really like to know is this—can he or any other man pass the 10 points which I consider essential to the man I want for a husband and for the father of my children?

1. He must neither drink nor curse. He may smoke cigarettes or pipes, but never cigars.

2. He must dress neatly and attractively and watch his waistline. He must always be closely shaved, with a few exceptions.

3. He must be sweet, considerate and loving, and yet masterful. He must be able to take care of himself.

4. He must like my family or pretend to do so.

5. He must have a cheerful disposition and must not be sullen.

6. He must be willing to take me "places" after we are married as he was before.

7. He must remain true to me and never flirt with other girls. If ever he should find someone he loves better, I want him to tell me. I will give him his freedom rather than live with the body of a man whose heart and soul are with another woman.

8. He must be healthy and protect his health.

9. He must love children.

10. He will have to work just as hard to "keep" me as he did to "get" me because those "campaign promises" soon wear off. Besides, I am saving enough money to get a divorce before I get married.

Oh, no, I'm not old and cranky. I am 19 years of age, fairly pretty, blonde and have a nice figure. I am not dumb either as I have been working for one of the leading doctors in our city since I was 17 years old. So, Mister, before you give "essential points," be sure you can live up to some "essential points."

UP-TO-PAR.

No, not old and cranky, but young and silly. Maybe not dumb but definitely blind. No doubt pretty, blonde and streamlined, but what about the unselfishness, the intestinal fortitude without which we cannot get along in this world, married or single?

Famous Gardens To Be Scene Of Walne-Marshall Nuptials

• • • INVITATIONS HAVE been received in Atlanta to the marriage of lovely Mary Jane Walne, of Houston, Texas, and Whitfield Huff Marshall, of Washington, D. C., which takes place in the Texas city on August 10. Many Atlantans met the charming bride-elect when she came here in the early spring at the invitation of the Peachtree Garden Club to lecture on flower arrangement at the Piedmont Driving Club and so entranced were they with her beauty and charm that any news of her is vastly interesting.

Another reason for local society's interest in the nuptials is found in the fact that Mr. Marshall is a cousin of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Abreu, of Atlanta and Sea Island. The Abreus plan to attend the wedding which will be one of those lovely alfresco affairs taking place at six o'clock in the evening in the beautiful gardens at the home of the bride-elect's close friend, Miss Ima Hogg, at 2940 Lazy Lane. The gardens rank among the most scenic and beautifully planned in this country and will form a perfect setting for the nuptials. The wedding tableau will be reflected in the crystal clear pool which is surrounded by exquisite marble statues brought by Miss Hogg from Europe. The pool is overhung by giant magnolias and great oaks, beyond which bloom myriads of summer flowers in all the colors of the rainbow.

Following the garden ceremony a reception will be given at the home of Miss Walne's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hilman Walne, at 1405 South Boulevard. Mr. Marshall is originally from Washington, D. C., but since graduating from the Washington Law School, he has made his some in Houston where he ranks as one of the city's most popular young professional men. He has chosen as his best man, his brother, James P. Marshall, of Washington and Wilmington, Del., and Percival Roberts Bailey, of Atlanta, will be one of the groomsmen.

Atlantans who attended the annual convention of the Garden Club of America which met in Houston last summer, remember with particular pleasure the beautiful flower arrangements done by Miss Walne, who in addition to her garden club activities is a member of the Houston Junior League. One of the loveliest affairs gracing the convention calendar was the tea at which Miss Hogg entertained the visitors in her famous gardens.

• • • BILL PHILLIPS did not need an introduction to convince him that Louise Connell was THE ONE for him. All he wanted was a glimpse of the pretty blonde belle, and he immediately set about arranging a meeting, resulting in the recent announcement of the popular couple's engagement.

It happened like this: Last October while Bill was a senior at Georgia Tech and a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity, Louise attended a house dance given by the Betas. Lo and behold, though Bill wasn't introduced to Louise, he wrote her a letter the following week to Athens, where she was a student, requesting that she make a weekend visit to Atlanta to have a date with him.

Obviously the co-ed acquiesced, for in March, during the spring holidays from the University, the handsome Alabama swain presented her an exquisite solitaire. Though the plans of the couple, whose engagement was announced recently, are indefinite as yet, their marriage is set for August 31, after which they will reside in High Point, N. C., where Bill is a chemical engineer.

Vacation Bible School

An interesting commencement program recently closed the twentieth vacation Bible school sponsored by the Andrew-Frances Stewart Good Will Center, with 300 children participating in the event.

A playlet, "The Voice of the Future," presenting some of the knowledge learned by the children, handwork and dealing with children's safety through co-operation of community, day school, Bible school and the home. "Jesus the Way" was the subject of an address.

There was an average attendance of 222 in the school and 161 were awarded certificates for perfect attendance and memory work.

The superintendents of the various departments were as follows: Beginners, Mrs. T. R. Collins; primary, Miss Martha Robinson and Mrs. J. C. White; junior, Mrs. J. C. Arwood, Mrs. Carroll, Miss Myrtle Slaters and Mrs. J. A. Kelly; intermediate, Mrs. Russell Bennett and Mrs. Carl Clover. Miss Elizabeth Lundy was principal.

Music was presented by Mrs. W. B. Hale, pianist, and Mrs. Annie Johnston, vocalist.

Ushers were Dr. Enoch Callaway, of LaGrange, a brother of the groom, and T. Adolphus Kimble, of Orlando, Fla., a brother of the bride.

The bride was attired in powder blue, with accessories of navy and white. She wore a shoulder spray of white orchids and lilies of the valley. Her only ornament was a pearl brooch, belonging to Mrs. H. Albert Petty.

After the wedding the parents of the bride entertained at a reception at their home.

The bridal couple left for New York and other points of interest in the New England states. Upon their return they will reside in Dawson, where Mr. Crowell holds a responsible position with the Terrell county department of public health.

THE MORTAL STORM

Ulrich Tells Amelie Hans Was Shot Without Orders and Over the Border

By PHYLLIS BOTTOLE.

THE MORTAL STORM. Accompanying her Communist lover, Hans Breitner, to the Austrian border, as he is fleeing from the Nazis, Freya Roth is killed. Amelie Hans, who thinks that her stepbrother, Olaf von Rohn, and her aristocratic admirer, Fritz Maberg, who appeared on the scene, had come to her rescue. Hans' death leaves Freya mentally and physically ill and she contemplates suicide until her wife, Amelie, a celebrated Jewish scientist, dissuades her. Hans' death is a shock to Freya's young brother, Rudolf, who has been separated from his mother because he has felt the menace of the Hitler regime, for in school he has been segregated from his classmates because he is Jewish and has been insulted and ostracized. Freya finds that Rudolf's presence at her bedside helps to bring Hans back to life. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

INSTALLMENT XXXVII

Of course Ulrich would give poor Amelie his advice, it was just exactly what he wanted to give her. He felt himself bursting with the most generous—the most delicate advice.

"You see, my dear," he said, with a suspicious glance about him, calculated to rivet any curiosity that might have been roused already in their neighborhood, "our young people as you very truly observe, have got themselves into a mess! You mustn't think I uphold what my boy Fritz has done! No—I thought when I was told of it in a really pleasant and friendly way by one of our foremost Nazis—one mustn't mention names here but I'll tell you afterwards what he was—verflucht Kerl—he has put his foot into it!"

"A good honest boy, Fritz, but oddly clumsy. He takes after his mother's side of the family. You remember perhaps what I was at his age? More polished—more informed—more discreet! No doubt I owed it to my upbringing!

"You can't expect nowadays to see examples of our old Bavarian breeding under 50. Motor cars and aeroplanes—though I say nothing against them as conveniences—take the glitter off people's manners! You remember our old silver helmets. Ah, how I would have flogged my servant, had I not been able to use mine like a mirror! But I always could! And the harness on my horse, too—how it sparkled! Where was I? Yes—well, my first impression of this little gaffe on the mountains—was that it might be serious—very serious indeed! You see, these Nazis haven't been with us long enough for one to be perfectly sure of their good sense, but I want to tell you, Amelie, that today they made a good impression on me—a very good impression indeed!"

Ulrich blinked and paused, it was a good moment to put down the final morsel of chocolate cream Torto and to decide between a cherry pastry, or something a little sharper—just to wind up with.

Amelie listened to him with that serene, effortless attention, so precious to an aimless talker; not attempting to chip in, or to head him off. It would be of great service to her, Ulrich told himself, to accept the Nazis at their true worth. It could not be denied, however fond he was of her, that Amelie had been strangely remiss as a mother. Fancy allowing Freya to be seen about with a peasant boy—even Hermine would have been less supine as a domestic authority. Sophie—a silly puss—had taken some watching, but there she was—pure as a lily—to be handed on to young von Rohn on her bridal night.

One could hardly be surprised that Fritz, who if he were going to marry Freya, would naturally not wish her to be blown upon, had picked the fellow off! A good thing that the peasant boy was a Communist, when you came to think of it.

"Freya," Ulrich said aloud, having tasted the gratitude he expected, from Amelie's smiling eyes, "poor child, has always—if you will permit me to say so—run too wild! With due allowance for our modern freedom—do not yourself think that as a parent you carried it too far? In a little girl—with three brothers—to be a tomboy is, I think, understandable, but I must say, Amelie, in your place, I should have called her in at 12, or at least 13—I certainly should!"

"Perhaps you are right," Amelie said with a ghost of a smile hovering over her curved lips. "It may be that you are right, Ulrich. I had a very sheltered girlhood myself, as you know, and I was not, you see, altogether convinced of its usefulness. This modern world is tough and I thought that I would like to see my girl self-reliant and capable of taking care of herself."

"Ah, well," Ulrich admitted, touched to the heart by what he took to be Amelie's delicate apology for the mistaken choice of her youth, "one must admit your people were exaggeratedly careful! A girl should know more than they taught you, Amelie! But Freya has gone a good deal to far in the opposite direction—if I may say this running about alone with peasant boys—is regrettable and bound to lead to some kind of trouble sooner or later! I know, Fritz tells me that it was merely skiving! Still he seems to have taken a good deal to heart. He shot the fellow himself, you know, Amelie! Although Olaf—at his superior officer—gave the order. It seemed the two Brown Shirts they took up with them, to do the actual shooting, muffed their shots. Fritz thought the fellow would get clean away—so he took a sporting shot at him—and got him through the heart. A good shot—over 20 yards! and a moving quarry; moonlight, too! Won't you have another Kavak Broth-en, Amelie?"

She shook her head. There was a queer veiled look in her eyes, and though she paused—for quite a long time—for her to make some appropriate comment, she did not.

"The point is," Ulrich went on at last, leaning forward so that he was close to her small shell-like ear, "that it mustn't be known, you see. They sent him not only without orders—but it appears that he was actually over the border, a yard or two only—but of course they dragged the body back to our own side and who cares for Austrian border line anyhow? I beg your pardon, Amelie—I'd forgotten you were an Austrian by birth, and I mean now of course before the war—it was quite a different thing. A great empire, Austria in those days, and she had to be treated accordingly!"

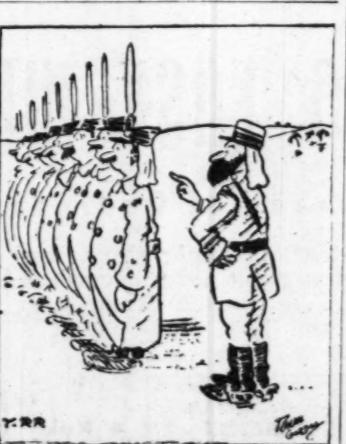

Amelie drew back her head, but she did not look offended—only a little dazed. The room was hot, and there was a good deal of noise going on that might account for it. "Fritz," his father went on, in his guttural undertone, "will have to stay when he is—cooling his heels—for a bit—two months at least—but that won't do him any harm!" Three separate counts against him, you see—a summary execution, without orders; absence from barracks without leave; and that frontier question! Olaf is merely detained for a month. They don't either of them lose rank!"

"They don't lose rank!" Amelie repeated just above her breath. She must have been a good deal relieved, Ulrich thought.

"And now you see," he went on, giving her a friendly, not too friendly, pat, "we've come to the question of Freya!"

She woke up then, and looked at him as if her life depended on his words. "Now, Amelie, my dear friend," Ulrich observed protectively, but with due caution because he knew that he must not let the generosity of his caution run away with him, "I will speak quite openly to you! We have—on your side and on mine—always, I think, anticipated marriages between our children. One is to take place—with our mutual blessing—and I am quite sure to our mutual satisfaction. But the second one—one must admit that it does not appear such straight sailing! After I had heard this story—and bearing in mind the rumors that had crept about Freya and the peasant boy—I had really rather give up the plan, and Hermine—well, Hermine was quite emphatically

"I'm against divorce, but I often wish I could start over with Pa. If I'd started out knownin' as much as I know now, what hair he's got wouldn't be so gray."

Tells the Story Of Barefooted Georgia Lady

WE'RE IN FOR IT.
Peace is now at an end, the delegates done
With the work of the two great conventions;
The Wendells and Franks
Have inserted their planks
And have, more or less, named their intentions.

From now until late in the fall of the year
We must listen to candidates chatter,
And the night, silence stilled,
Once again will be filled
With the din of their incessant patter.

They'll talk with a sob and a catch in their throats,
And their tears for the masses fall freely;
They will give us no rest
'Til we want to go west
Or some further point mentioned by Greeley.

Contentions and strife will be part of each life
Until election tension relaxes
And Old Average Man
Resumes his normal span
And gets busy to pay off the taxes.

OLLIE REEVES.

"As a Yard Dog"

This item would be of vastly more interest if I could name names. But worthless though my life may be I place a certain value on it.

It is about a little home in south Georgia where the hostess is a charming woman with many friends. One of them is a professor in a college. He telephoned her that he had another professor friend from the middle west as his guest and would like to bring him over. The guest was a gentleman of high position and great dignity.

The group was chatting in the sun parlor when the principal subject of this story arrived. She was as much at home as though she were one of the family. She drove to the back yard, climbed out of her car, and realized that her feet hurt. She knew the hardwood floors were nice and cool and was sure no strangers would be about, so she slipped off her shoes and stockings, gave her tootsies a nice wiggle in the damp grass and entered through the kitchen.

A momentary silence had fallen on the group in the sun parlor, so she had no premonition of disaster. She entered upon the scene as barefooted as a yard dog, as she would say.

But she had supreme presence of mind. She met the guests graciously, took a seat and wiggled her toes. She attempted no apologies, no explanations. If the visiting professor took her condition as proof of Madame Perkins' theory that the south goes shoeless, so be it.

I have an idea the visitor's host explained later that the fair caller really did own shoes and wore them most of the time. I hope so. It would be a shame for him to go back home with false ideas about Georgia.

He'll Fool You

One of our correspondents wired from the Chicago convention that Jack Williams, of the Waycross Journal-Herald, was the most interviewed delegate—by the female reporters.

I'm used to observing that Jack, with his shock of white hair, his black windsor tie and his cherubic countenance, just naturally draws the women. He looks like he'd never quite grown up—but he's helped Waycross grow up and prosper—and his own affairs are not so bad, either.

I wonder sometimes whether most of our foreign spy scares are not pure hysteria.

Few days ago a man with a foreign accent—who turned out to be a Swiss—was held for questioning in New York because he'd been shooting a few camera shots from a bridge. He asked the officers to escort him to a souvenir shop near by and bought them a dozen picture postcards—at three for a nickel—showing the same views he'd shot. And in colors, too.

I like—and I know you will after you get the habit—Jimmy Hatlo's daily cartoon, "They'll Do It Every Time."

Just a trivial pictorial comment on life's daily troubles. One reason they're so refreshingly true is because Hatlo doesn't try to think them all up himself. Readers send him ideas—taken from their own routine—and he draws 'em. I wish my readers—but why go on?

Complaint via telephone that one of the larger office buildings left the United States flag out through all the rainy spell.

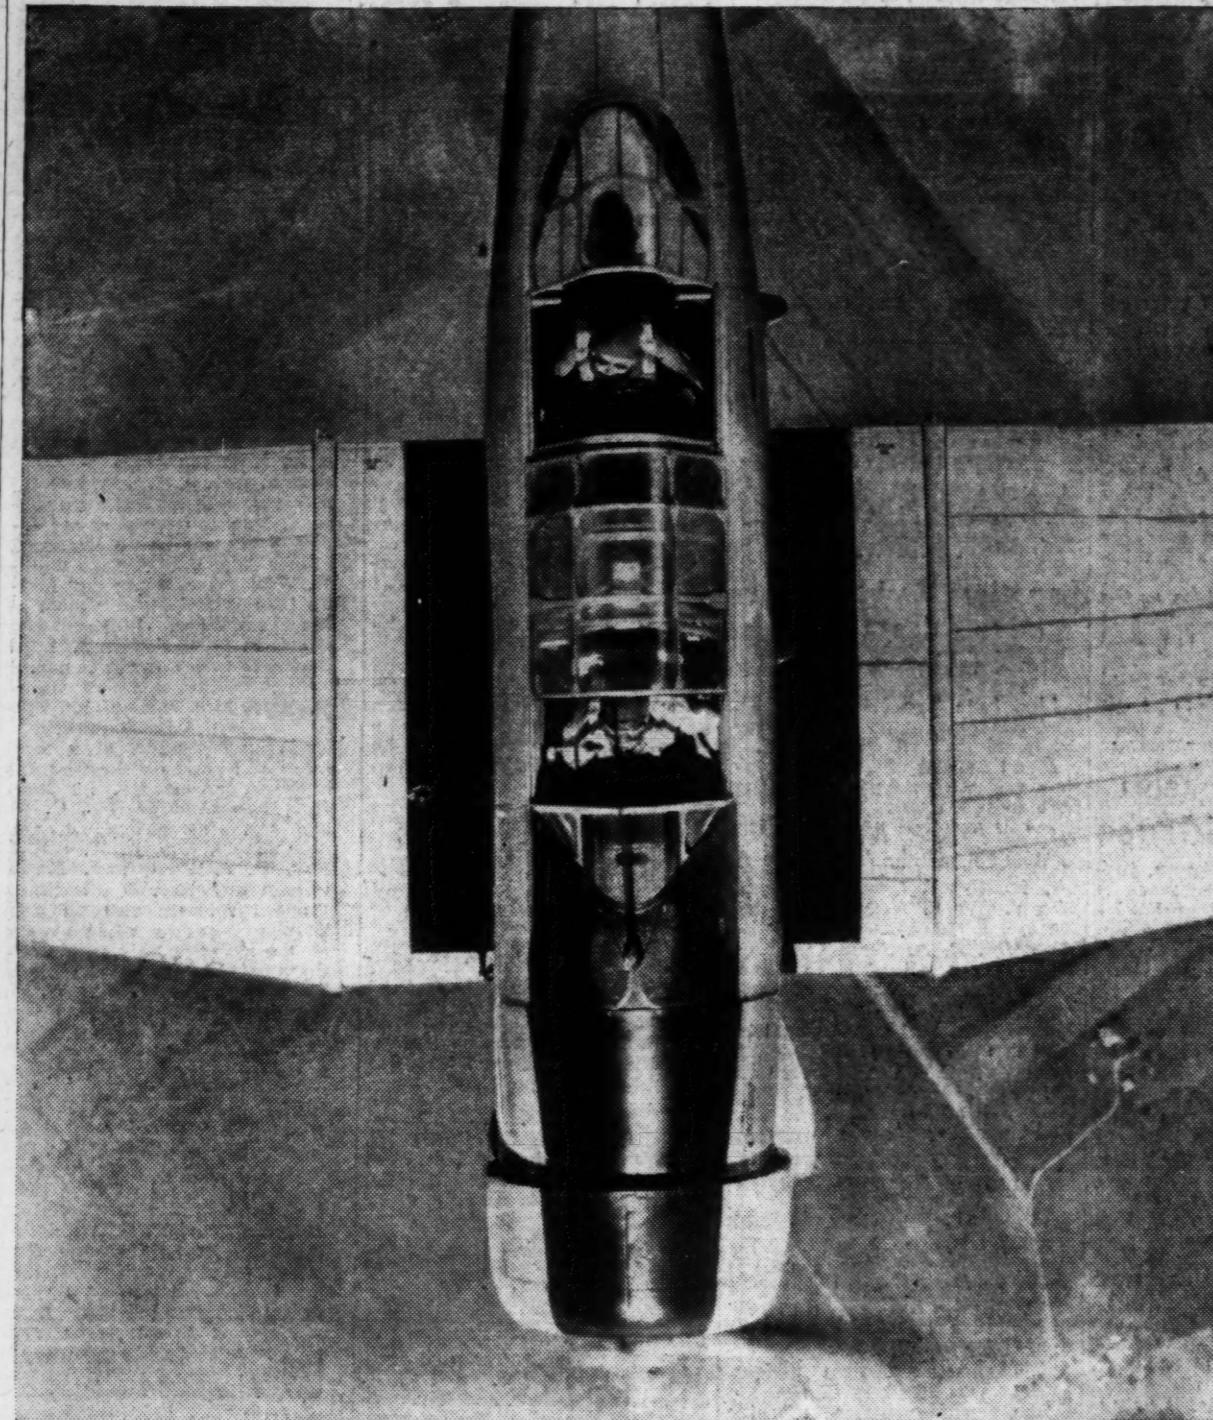

Point well taken. Old Glory isn't supposed to fly after dark or during a rain. American Legion, I am sure, will give any interested person a copy of the code of the flag, which tells how and where and when it should be unfurled to the breeze—and when it shouldn't.

Hawaiian Rights Sought By Japanese-Americans

HONOLULU, July 21.—(P)—Statehood for Hawaii and immediate expatriation of all dual citizens of Japanese ancestry were urged in a resolution drafted today by New Americans, a newly-formed organization of Japanese-Americans in Hawaii. The resolution pledged undivided allegiance to the United States.

Asserting they have been discriminated against because of their race, the young Japanese-Americans, who constitute a majority in the islands, seek recognition of their status as American citizens, with equal economic and social rank.

A Bird's-Eye View of Pilots at School

BIRD'S-EYE view of a warbird is this, looking down upon one of the basic training planes at Randolph Field, Texas, the "West Point of the Air," where flying cadets are being taught as pilots for the rapidly expanding Air Corps. A total of 10,600 fliers are expected to be trained annually.

NAVIGATION is the topic Lieutenant Patrick McIntyre (pointing) is discussing with students at March Field, Cal., where the Army Air Corps, to insure an adequate supply, is completing training of pilots and navigators for its huge four-motored Boeing bombers. Each student carries a case of navigation instruments.

INFERNO AT STOCKYARDS Firemen are shown battling the raging flames which destroyed the Bayle-LaCoste Stockyards, slaughter house and tallow works on the Emeryville waterfront, near Oakland, Cal., Saturday. Losses were estimated at $120,000 and one fireman was injured seriously. Thousands of spectators from East Bay cities came to see the 100-foot flames, shown in background.

TOMMIES A British Tommy, ready to repel a Nazi invasion, holds an American "tommy," otherwise known as a sub-machinegun. Large numbers of these stubby, American-made weapons are being supplied British defense forces as total war threatens. This one is ready to be fired from the hip.

MANY, VARIED are problems connected with operation of the army's great bombers. Here Lieutenant Patrick McIntyre, at March Field, explains the function of a radio direction finder.

SAYS 'NO' to the leg-art boys. Claudette Colbert won't let them photograph her shapely gams, saying there must be some definite reason. This photo was taken before she took her present stand.

Says Roosevelt Had to Humor His Enemies

CHICAGO, July 21.—So it was a harmonious nomination. But on the afternoon before, Senator Burton Wheeler sat in hotel rooms putting final touches to a poisonously isolationist platform plank, which finally went to the convention exactly as he wrote it except for the addition of one qualifying clause.

Everybody knew that plank could have been beaten on the floor of the convention if the President had sent one hot little message saying he didn't like it. But everybody also knew this message would not come, and why it would not.

There ought to be some way of saying that the President was apparently willing to trade his shirt for a harmonious nomination, without using those blunt words, which are certainly unkind and may be a little untrue. But that's about the way the tide was drifting when the platform went before the convention.

Own Foreign Plank

Of course we can be realistic and say the President himself is his own foreign plank. That so long as the convention nominated him, anything else it said was so much impotent babbling.

But let's get a little more realistic and admit that maybe the adoption of this Wheeler plank reveals a weakness which may grow during the campaign and spread to other issues. For because of the third term, even his small group of enemies within his party had him on the defensive.

This convention obviously wanted to renominate Roosevelt. But by Tuesday night it was clear even to the humblest delegate that Roosevelt also wanted to be renominated, if it could be harmonious, which meant that he could only have it on his enemies' terms. He took them.

Galleries Respond

For a few hours it looked from the press box as though Roosevelt—compromising on the defensive—maybe after all wasn't the strongest candidate the Democrats could have picked against Willkie. If in his Tuesday night statement he had flatly turned the nomination down, he would have electrified the delegates and stepped up into history. A delirious convention would then have given him any candidate and any platform he wanted.

And later, speaking from the sidelines, he could have made shredded hamburger out of Willkie, who is very vulnerable. Whether his party won or lost the election, he would still be Roosevelt, the undefeated champion and the elder statesman with a hold over popular confidence and a place in national affairs as great or perhaps greater than any man in the White House.

As it is, he is still Roosevelt, deeply beloved and trusted by millions of plain and fancy citizens. If you doubt this, you should have heard them, from the galleries, with a sudden-rising angry roar, down, in a storm of boos, the delegate who tried to put an anti-third term plank in the platform. Up to that moment the galleries had been placid in their enthusiasm for the President. But they sprang from their seats in white anger the minute he was challenged and in danger.

Honeymoon Island Stork Race Begins

NEW YORK, July 21.—(P)—"Honeymoon Islanders," former residents of the Florida island where newlyweds may spend two weeks without expense, were advised today that they are entries in a "stork sweepstakes."

Clinton M. Washburn, owner of Honeymoon Isle, off St. Petersburg, told 100 couples who spent their honeymoons as his guests that he would give the parents of the first 20 babies the palm-thatched cottages in which they lived.

The ex-honeymooners formed an organization to promote honeymoons in other parts of the country, at which brides and grooms may spend their opening weeks of married life without financial worries.

Dairy Awarded $10,000 From Striking Union

NEW YORK, July 21.—(P)—The Sheffield Farms Milk Company was awarded $10,000 damages from the teamsters union (AFL) for a one-day strike of milk wagon drivers last February, in a decision by Arthur Meyer, chairman of the New York milk industry, announced today.

The company had listed damages of $18,000. Meyer suggested that his $10,000 award be voluntarily cut in half by the company to foster amicable labor relations.

4 Killed and 4 Injured In Wisconsin Accident

SUPERIOR, Wis., July 21.—(P)—Four Superior residents were killed and four others seriously injured in the collision of two automobiles near Pattison State park south of here last night.

Killed were Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Nelson, Myron Larson, 16, and Floyd Peterson, 10, all occupants of the same car. Two other passengers, Jack Setterstrom, 10, and William Nelson, 12, son of the dead couple, were taken to St. Mary's hospital with serious injuries. Occupants of the other car, Vern Soderlund, 39, and Herbert Sale, 25, of Superior, also were critically hurt.
